GIORDANO ATTORNEY AUTHORS NEW EDITION OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT LAW

MIDDLETOWN, NJ – Giordano Halleran & Ciesla, P.C. is pleased to announce Michael A. Pane Jr., shareholder of the firm in the Real Estate, Land Use and Development Practice Area, has authored the fourth edition of Local Government Law (Vols. 34-3A, New Jersey Practice Series), published by Thomas West Publishing Company.

Local Government Law is a comprehensive guide that examines the actions of New Jersey local government law. It provides essential information on planning boards, land use and environmental control, licensing, construction codes, tort liability, property taxes, and public contracts. The book also covers the sources and limits of local authority, procedural aspects of local legislation, eminent domain, officers and employees, public safety, elections, challenging local actions, and litigation between units of government. The book was originally authored by Pane's late father, Michael Pane Sr.

Pane focuses his practice in the areas of commercial transactions and real estate, obtaining approvals for development, litigation relating to land use and local government matters, real estate and municipal law consultation. Pane is experienced in many aspects of municipal law and real estate acquisition. He is a member of the New Jersey and New York State Bar Associations, the New Jersey Builders Association, and the Shore Builders Association of Central New Jersey.

Local Government Law can be purchased online at west.thomson.com or by calling 1-800-344-5009.
